

Disclose your fangs

Parental Information

Disclosing tablets are not harmful but you should avoid swallowing whenever possible.

Disclosing tablets may stain clothing.

To avoid discolouration of lips, a little petroleum jelly may be applied before use.

It is the plaque that remains on the teeth that is stained by the disclosing tablet therefore it may be useful to get the child to brush first and then use a disclosing tablet in order to highlight any areas missed during brushing

Half a disclosing tablet is plenty for a small mouth, take care when breaking the tablet with a knife.

To keep your fangs looking sharp follow the steps below...

-  Put half a disclosing tablet into your mouth.
-  Crunch it up to make your mouth watery. Try not to swallow the pieces.
-  Run your tongue around your fangs. Rub around the edges, near the gums and between your teeth.
-  Rinse and spit out carefully into the sink
-  Look in the mirror and smile!

Where you see the colour is where the germs are left.

-  Now brush the coloured germs away with your toothbrush.
